Nov. 5-7. They were participating in a Sleeping Bag Seminar, a program of the Northeast Region of the National Collegiate Honors Council. Honors students from Gallaudet hosted and managed the weekend program, which focused on visual communication and exposed all students to the rich visual resources of the Washington, D.C. area.

Catherine Ingold, Honors director, explained that this was the region's fourth sleeping bag seminar in two years and the first ever hosted by Gallaudet. The National Collegiate Honors Council sponsors these events for two reasons: to gather honors students together in an intellectually stimulating setting, and to promote fellowship and fun. "The program must be substantive but there is no exam—that's part of the fun!" said Ingold.

The topic of visual communication was developed in an interdisciplinary manner and involved education, religion, cultural values, performing and visual arts.

Approximately 60 Gallaudet students participate in the Honors Program. Ellie Savidge was chairperson on the weekend seminar. Her goal for the weekend was that the participants would have "the positive feeling of having done something valuable while learning from the program and each other." Both the Gallaudet and visiting students major in different areas and had the opportunity to learn from each other's speciality.

"Affective Domain-Effective Education" was the kick-off lecture for the honors students. Jim Achtzehn, assistant professor, Department of Education, moderated the session and the multimedia presentation. The material

Hospital staff learns about deafness

by Pattie Cinelli

Health care professionals at Capitol Hill Hospital who have had minimal experience in deafness now have the opportunity to learn about the care of deaf patients and deafness through a series of seminars being offered by the National Academy and the Student Health Service.

The first in a series of four three-hour seminars was held Nov. 3 and dealt with deaf patients in the health care setting. Connie Knight, the National Academy's coordinator of professional training for health care delivery systems, and Holly Goodling, nursing supervisor at the Gallaudet Student Health Service, covered a variety of topics that provided insight into communication adjustments and practical strategies for care of deaf patients.

"I hope you all leave here today with new skills," said Knight to the more than 25 professionals present at the seminar. They represented the hospital admissions staff, outpatient services, volunteers, clerical and support staff, lab technicians, nurses and members of the patient escort service. Almost all had worked with deaf patients and had experienced frustration both with themselves and patients because they could not communicate.

Knight and Goodling identified barriers to the delivery of quality health care to deaf patients, described communication problems encountered by deaf patients and demonstrated methods of communication. Knight talked about the important difference between a handicap and a disability and defined pre-lingual deafness vs. post-lingual deafness.

To illustrate what it is like to have a hearing loss, Knight played a recording

New media

by Regina Koch

More and more people are interested in physical fitness today. Exercise can be a good way to reduce stress and to feel great. "A Fitness Experience" (Media 613.71 F5 1973) explains the benefits of aerobic dancing and how to conduct a group aerobic dance program. Several dance routines are given, accompanied by two cassettes.

"The Physiology of Exercise" (Media 612.76 P45 1976) discusses how and why exercising is important to each of us. This filmstrip and cassette set describes how to set up an exercise program and the different kinds of exercises that are good to do.

One sport that is very popular and is good exercise is tennis. A set of eight super 8mm film loops (Media 786.342 T4 1969) gives a good introduction to the sport. The rules of the game plus different techniques and tactics to use are clearly shown.

For persons who missed all or parts of it on television and now have the time (about 13 hours in all!) "Brides-head Revisited" is now in the videotape collection (#1881).

Three recent videotapes on photography include programs from the series "Media Probes," "Creativity" and "Nova." In "Moving Still" (#1987) photographic and processing techniques are examined. "Media Probes" and "Creativity's" "Photography" (#1983, #1911) discuss the works of well-known photographers including Emmet Gowin and Gary Winogrand.

If you are interested in viewing these videotapes or others, call Television Cable Services at x5931 voice or x5932 TDD. The filmstrips, cassettes and other audiovisual materials are located on the lower level of the Learning Center. Stop by Individualized Learning or call x5580 voice or x5579 TDD. 352-48-6717.

Reception honors Alan Crammatte

Nov. 18 is sixth annual Smokeout day

Nov. 18, 1982 marks the date of the sixth annual Great American Smokeout.

Despite all the evidence targeting the dangers of smoking, more than 52 million Americans still smoke. However, nine out of 10 smokers have said in surveys that they would like to quit.

The Great American Smokeout (GAS) is sponsored by the American Cancer Society. It offers these nine out of 10 smokers the chance and the incentive to give up cigarettes by asking them to stop smoking for 24 hours, with the hope that they will quit for good. Last year approximately 16.5 million smokers participated in the Smokeout. Nearly 5 million succeeded by not smoking for the entire 24 hours. One to 11 days later, nearly 3 million reported still not smoking.

The 1982 goal of the Great American Smokeout is to get at least one in every five smokers to give up cigarettes from midnight to midnight on Thursday, Nov. 18. 578-78-6724.

Student Affairs staff discusses student development at Gallaudet

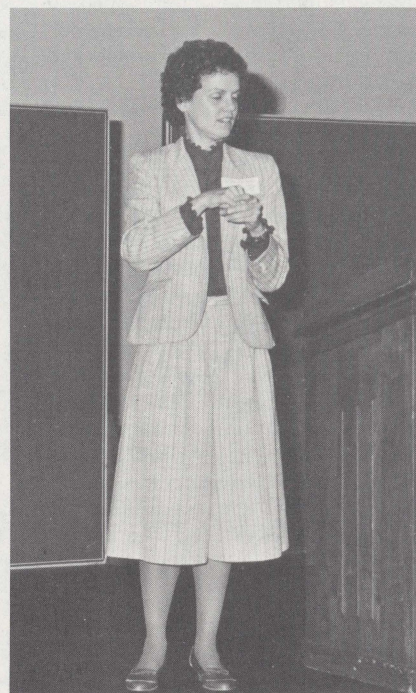

More than 50 staff members in Student Affairs met in Ely Center Oct. 20 for information and discussion on the topic "Student Development: What is it? (And where do I fit in?)" The occasion was the first Student Affairs Staff Development Day, organized by the Student Affairs Staff Development Committee, under the auspices of Allen E. Sussman, dean of Student Affairs.

Participants heard a panel discussion on aspects of student development as related to the education of Gallaudet students, including presentations by Frank Turk, assistant dean for Student Life; Norma Buemi, assistant dean for Student Services; Virginia Cowgell, director of the Counseling and Placement Center; Matt Searls, director of Preparatory Studies; and Holly Goodling, nursing supervisor at the Student Health Services. The panel was moderated by Kay Fulton, personal counselor and coordinator for the Prep Orientation Course, Psychology 55. Student development in the areas of social life, morality and values, physical self-awareness and understanding of health needs, vocational awareness and cognitive development were described. The many questions from the floor addressed how these ideas can be most effectively implemented at Gallaudet through campus-wide programming.

During lunch, peer advisors and senior peer advisors from Benson, Krug and Cogswell Halls presented a skit entitled "What Is Student Development?" These student staff members, who work closely with prep and freshman students, are a key part of student development programming on campus, according to Cowgell, chair of the Student Affairs Staff Development Task Force. "They get to know new students as individuals, and serve as peer counselors and role models. They also provide group programs and general assistance. We are fortunate to have their participation on our program," said Cowgell.

The remainder of Staff Development Day was occupied by small group discussions of how Student Affairs units could most effectively contribute to student development.

Topics under consideration for future meetings include the impact of the Northwest Campus, services coordination and programs for students with special needs. Members of the Staff Development Committee currently are Virginia Cowgell, Matt Searls, Janet Hoke, Fran Taylor, John Raymer, Marsha Micelli, Regina Cassidy and Agnes Muse. 578-76-0593.

Sign guidelines

In a memo to Budget Unit Heads in September, President Merrill asked for cooperation in the use of signs on the outside of buildings on Kendall Green.

New signs designating buildings have been erected. Because functions and activities are not permanently placed in buildings and to avoid confusion, exterior signs naming offices, departments, workshops and meetings should not be used. Please be sure that materials sent to participants in these activities include the name of the building where they will take place.

Among Ourselves

Herbert Pearson of Gallaudet Television made a speech in Paris, France Nov. 2 at the Institut National de Jeunes Sourds (French School for the Deaf) about a proposal he wrote for GCTV. It explains how a new instructional approach using dramatizations can be successfully produced to teach deaf students in a visual way with a single-concept videotape. In addition, Pearson was asked to speak about the subject of captioning because there is now considerable interest in captioning for French television.

Pearson has also been appointed to the Cable Television Public Access Commission of Prince Georges County by County Executive Larry Hogan. He has recently been named chairman of the Subcommittee on Outreach for the Commission.

Christine Bounds Pearson, with MSSD's Clinical Support Services, made a presentation at the Institut de Sexologie in Paris Oct. 30 on the subject of "Consciousness-Raising for Young Deaf Female Teenagers." She presented a videotape at the Institut, during the 3rd International Conference on Sexuality and Disability, showing her work in leading groups on this topic at MSSD.

Robert Davila, vice president for Pre-College Programs, was the keynote speaker at the bi-annual convention of the Association of Educators of the Deaf in New York state held in White Plains Oct. 8-10. He spoke on the convention theme, "Tomorrow Begins With Today" to some 500 educators of the hearing impaired from all over the state, as well as those in allied fields of speech, audiology, psychology, guidance and social work. The convention was held at the New York School for the Deaf.

Alumni and Public Relations Director Jack Gannon spoke on "The Heritage of Deaf People" Oct. 9 at the first "American Culture: The Deaf Perspective" program at Ohlone College in Fremont, CA. The previous evening he spoke at the annual meeting of the Deaf Counseling, Advocacy and Referral Agency in San Leandro, and on Oct. 10 he addressed about 40 members of the MorCal Chapter of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association on developments at Gallaudet and on the new Annual Fund.

Wanda Hicks, specialist, Educational Disorders, MSSD; John Raymer, director of Student Special Services; and Suzanne Manzi, audiologist, MSSD, presented a workshop entitled "Introduction to Hearing Impairments and Communication with Vision Impaired Deaf Persons" Nov. 1 at MSSD. This workshop was presented at the monthly meeting of Orientation and Mobility Instructors in the Metropolitan Washington Area.

Boris Bogatz of the School of Education and Human Services participated as a member of the Board of Directors for the Association of Conference and Events Directors-International in Denver, CO on Oct. 27 and 28. The primary purpose of the meeting was to plan the program for the upcoming annual national meeting also to be held in Denver in March 1983. In addition to serving on the board, Bogatz will deliver a presentation dealing with architectural and program accessibility for handicapped persons at the 1983 meeting.

Joe Fritsch of the Physical Education Department served as trainer's coordinator for the American East vs. National East NFLPA All-Star Season football game at RFK Stadium in Washington, DC on Sunday, Oct. 17.

Turkey day

This Wednesday, Nov. 17, ARA will be serving turkey and the trimmings for lunch in the Alumni House instead of the regular menu. 179-34-7285.

Cable TV captions programs

The National Captioning Institute has announced that Showtime, the nation's second largest pay cable TV producer, has renewed, for the second year, its commitment to close caption the entire fall season of "Bizarre," about 24 half-hour episodes.

This comedy series, starring John Byner, is the first series on cable closed captioned television for hearing impaired viewers.

NCI is working to get a national commitment by cable TV leaders to increase the amount of captioned programs shown specifically on cable TV. A recent survey conducted by NCI revealed that more than 90% of caption decoder owners either subscribe to a cable TV service now or would if more closed-captioned programming were available on cable. 219-80-9183 of words heard at different levels of loudness and clarity. Participants also learned how to fingerspell their names and viewed a film demonstrating care of a deaf patient in a hospital setting.

Barbara Peacock of Capitol Hill Hospital and Holly Goodling of the Student Health Service attended the health care seminar.

Hospital seminar

The idea of the seminar series at Capitol Hill came from hospital staff members themselves after they begun treating Gallaudet students. About eight months ago Marsha Melamed became the health care administrator of the Student Health Service which is a unit of Student Affairs. She thought it would be a good idea to centralize referrals made by the Student Health Service. Capitol Hill Hospital was a natural choice for these referrals because of its proximity to the campus. As a result, a working agreement with Capitol Hill was set up so Gallaudet can now send students to the hospital for services the Student Health Service cannot provide such as x-rays and emergency room treatment. Within the past seven years Capitol Hill has gone through a complete reorganization and has recently merged with Washington Hospital Center.

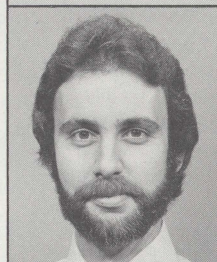

"Procedures are written down so anyone making or receiving referrals can have things go smoothly for both the students and the hospital," explained Melamed. She said that when students started being treated at Capitol Hill, members of the hospital staff realized they needed to learn more about deafness and how to communicate with deaf people. That is why the seminars were begun.

Three other seminars at the hospital are scheduled throughout the winter and spring. They will focus on caring for deaf patients, dealing with the deaf emergency patient and strategies for care of the deaf patient. Knight said they hope to have a workshop sometime this winter for doctors working with Gallaudet students.

Melamed pointed out that this is the first time Gallaudet has established a formal relationship with a hospital and said she hoped the procedures used by Capitol Hill Hospital and the Student Health Service will be a model for relationships established with other hospitals in the area that can provide special services for Gallaudet students. 246-76-4401.

Personnel Hotline

Open Season begins

The Open Season for 1983 health insurance will start next Monday, Nov. 22 and continue until Friday, Dec. 10. During those three weeks, all permanent employees will be able to change to a different health plan or option, switch from "self only" to "self and family" coverage or enroll in a plan for the first time without restrictions.

There have been some shifts in benefits offered in the various plans for 1983 but the biggest change is the 28% average rate increases for health premiums. For this reason, it will be important for employees to consider carefully the plans available and to choose the one that best meets each person's needs.

In order to help employees make those decisions, a Health Benefits Fair will be held in the Multi-purpose Room in Ely Center on Wednesday, Dec. 1 from 2-4:30 p.m. and on Thursday, Dec. 2 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Representatives from the various health plans will be on hand to answer questions concerning their coverages in 1983. Please plan on stopping by and meeting with the representatives.

All employees currently enrolled in a health plan should have received through campus mail a summary listing of the changes in their plan for 1983 plus information concerning the cost of their coverage. As soon as 1983 booklets and comparison charts are available, they will be distributed to all eligible employees.

If you have any specific questions concerning this fall's Open Season, please call David Curtis on x5113 voice or TDD, or use the Personnel Hotline, x5111 voice or TDD. Also look for a special supplement in next week's On the Green which will explain changes in coverages in greater detail. 577-50-0717.

Honors seminar

was developed by the Doctoral Program in Educational Technology for Educators of the Deaf at Syracuse University. The film presentation includes many members of the Gallaudet faculty.

Affective domain refers to the third dimension of education—attitudes, values and emotions. The first domain is cognitive and the second is psychomotor. The honors students discussed the need for affective materials to be included in their own course of studies. They also evaluated the presentation's effectiveness in visually communicating an idea.

The visitors also toured the Kendall and MSSD campuses for their education segment. Then they were off with Gallaudet honors students to tour cross-cultural exhibits in the capital's museums.

The first stop was the National Geographic exhibit on China. Next was a tour of the Hirshhorn Museum conducted by Deborah Sonnenstrahl, director of the Office of Fine Arts in Education here. With the aid of an interpreter the visiting students discovered a deaf professional woman's enthusiasm for her world of art.

The first day ended with "The Kid" and a "meet the actors" and discussion of the Theatre Arts Department play. This went on into the night. Then they retired to their sleeping bags.

"Visual Communication Across Linguistic Barriers" was the wake-up seminar lecture on Saturday. Director of Admissions and Records Jerald Jordan and Merv Garretson, special assistant to the president, gave the students some food for thought as they entered their second day of exercising their visual perception.

Jane Hurst, assistant professor from the Religion Department, led the group through the "Celebration: World of Art and Ritual" exhibit at the Renwick Museum. In the afternoon the students toured the Washington National Cathedral and the Museum of African Art. Joseph Kinner of the History Department involved the students not only in the art of the museum but also the costumes and ritual dances.

Saturday night rounded out the day with the Music Signers and a full fledged college party.

Ingold believes that the weekend accomplished Savidge's goal. Both the host students and the visiting students commented on the high degree of interaction—both personal and intellectual—that was possible through the weekend. Savidge says that one visitor comment "that her eyes were tired."

Many students said that they had come into the weekend looking for the difference between themselves and the deaf students. And they left after finding the similarities. 228-72-2378

Sign language book available

Signs of the Times by Edgar H. Shroyer, recently published by Gallaudet College Press, is designed to introduce hearing students to Manually Coded English and Pidgin Sign English. Pidgin Sign English (PSE) incorporates elements of American Sign Language and English. It is reported to be the most commonly used communication system in situations involving deaf and hearing adults.

Dr. Shroyer, a former professor of education at Gallaudet, is the hearing son of deaf parents. He is an experienced interpreter and sign language teacher. He chose the vocabulary for Signs of the Times in consultation with native signers and sign language teachers. Shroyer emphasizes the contextual meaning of words in English sentences.

The book contains more than 1,100 signs organized into 41 lessons. Each lesson contains clear illustrations, practice sentences, mind ticklers (mnemonic devices) and a vocabulary review. In addition, the text contains an introduction to sign language (including an explanation of the sign language continuum), suggestions for teachers, an appendix of conceptual signs (multi-sign words) and an extensive index.

Signs of the Times is now available at the Gallaudet College Bookstore.

MSSD sports

The MSSD football team defeated the Maryland School for the Deaf 36-0 on Saturday, Nov. 6. This was MSSD's Homecoming game.

The Eagles scored three TDs in the first quarter on runs of 13 yards by Toselli Silvestri, nine yards and one yard by Sean Markel. MSSD left no doubt who was the better team and after the first quarter it was a question of what the final score would be.

The Eagles added two more TDs in the second quarter on a 65 yard gallop by Wilkins and a four yard rush by Silvestri. That ended MSSD's scoring for the day. MSSD concluded the season with a 5-4 record.

The second half saw the Eagles JV play most of the way and although they didn't score any points they played good ball and gained added experience in preparing for the varsity team next season.

The JV football team concluded the season on Nov. 4 with a 6-0 loss to St. Mary's. This was their most exciting game of the season, having either won or lost their previous games by lopsided margins. The JV record is 2-4 for the season.

MSSD hosted the ESDAA Volleyball Tournament Nov. 4 and 5 with six schools participating. Lexington School defeated defending champions MSSD for the laurels. In the Championship game, MSSD won the opening match 15-12 but Lexington bounced back and took the next two matches 15-6 and 15-12.

Four MSSD girls were selected to the All Tournament Team—Karin Lucas and Brenda Redmond made the first team, and Kathryn Gibson and Grace Callery were selected to the second team.

In soccer competition, the boys defeated Harker Prep 3-1 but lost to Sandy Spring 4-2 in the season's final. The soccer team concluded regular season play with a 6-6 record.

The cross country team ran the Potomac Valley Athletic Conference Championship and placed third out of seven teams. The harriers concluded the season with a 27-39 victory over Sidwell Friends. 553-66-7867.
